

|                                    |                   |
|------------------------------------|-------------------|
| Teacher: CORE                      |                   |
| Discrete Math & Statistics         | Year: 2017-18     |
| Course: Discrete Math & Statistics | Month: All Months |

Election Theory

| Essential Questions  | Content              | Knowledge and Skills  | Vocabulary                                | Assessments | Lessons | Resources | Standards  |
|--|----------------------|---|---|-------------|---------|-----------|--|
| How do we determine one selection from many                          | Preference Schedules | Read and Interpret preference schedules   | Plurality/Majority Method                 |             |         |           | 2.5.11.A-Develop a plan to analyze a problem, identify the information needed to solve the problem, carry out the plan, check whether an answer makes sense, and explain how the problem was solved in grade appropriate contexts. |
| that most satisfies the preferences of a large group of individuals? |                      | Compute the Borda quality point ranking   | Borda Method                              |             |         |           |  |
|  |                      | Conduct the runoff method, rewriting the preference schedule to make a decision                           | Runoff/Sequential Runoff Method           |             |         |           |  |
|  |                      | Run head to head comparisonsInterpret the paradox of the Condorcet method                             | Condorcet Method                          |             |         |           |  |
|  |                      | Compare the advantages/disadvantages of each method in determining a winner                               |   |             |         |           |  |
|  | Weighted Voting      | Discuss weighted voting in our own presidential election  | coalitions: winning and minimally winning |             |         |           |  |
|  |                      | Generate a list of winning and minimally winning coalitionsDetermine the power index of a voting body | power index                               |             |         |           |  |

Graph Theory

| Essential Questions                              | Content         | Knowledge and Skills  | Vocabulary             | Assessments | Lessons | Resources | Standards  |
|--|-----------------|---|------------------------|-------------|---------|-----------|--|
| How can a graph comprising of vertices and edges | . Simple Graphs | Construct simple graphs to illustrate relationships between general objects | critical path analysis |             |         |           | 2.5.11.A-Develop a plan to analyze a problem, identify the information needed to solve the |

be used to solve problems of critical path analysis?

problem, carry out the plan, check whether an answer makes sense, and explain how the problem was solved in grade appropriate contexts.

vertex

edge connectivity

adjacency

Specialty Gra
phs

Trace Eulerian paths and circuits
Prove if a graph has an Eularian circuit
Trace Hamiltonian paths and circuits Prove if a graph has a Hamiltonian circuit paths and circuits

traceable graphs

vertex degree

Euler graphs
(Leonhard Euler)

Eulerizing

Hamiltonian graphs
(Sir William Rowan Hamilton)

Graph
Coloring

Use graph coloring for compatibility and optimization models

graph coloring

chromatic number

Counting

| Essential Questions                       | Content              | Knowledge and Skills                                     | Vocabulary           | Assessments | Lessons | Resources | Standards  |
|---|----------------------|--|----------------------|-------------|---------|-----------|--|
| What shortcuts and patterns can we use to | Method of Exhaustion | Exhausting possibilities and making comprehensinve lists | Method of Exhaustion |             |         |           | 2.5.11.A-Develop a plan to analyze a problem, identify the information needed to solve the problem, carry out the plan, check whether an answer makes sense, and explain how the problem was solved in grade appropriate contexts. | quickly and efficiently count an overwhelming number of outcomes?

2.5.11.B-Use symbols, mathematical terminology, standard notation, mathematical rules, graphing and other types of mathematical representations to communicate observations, predictions, concepts, procedures, generalizations, ideas, and results.

|                                |   |  |
|--------------------------------|---|--|
|                                |   | tree diagram   |
| Fundamental Counting Principal | Use the multiplication principle, addition principal, and factorials to count a number of tasks in succession. Rearrange objects where some of the objects are identical  | factorialsFCP (fundamental counting principal) |
| Permutations and Combinations  | . Count the number of ways to perform a task when order mattersCount the number of ways to perform a task when order does not matter. Use binomial coefficients to represent a combinationCount the elements in a sample space for the denominator of a probability calculation | "n choose r"binomial coefficient               |

Probability

| Essential Questions   | Content               | Knowledge and Skills   | Vocabulary             | Assessments | Lessons | Resources | Standards  |
|---|-----------------------|--|------------------------|-------------|---------|-----------|--|
| How can we determine the probability of two or more events occurring? | Unions, Intersections | Using Venn diagrams to model events, and determine union and intersectionUse formulas to calculate the union of 2, 3, 4 or 'n' events.Investigate DeMorgan's Laws to learn about complements of unions/intersections | union and intersection |             |         |           | 2.7.11.A-Use probability to predict the likelihood of an outcome in an experiment2.7.11.C-Compare odds and probability.2.7.11.E-Use probability to make judgments about the likelihood of various outcomes |

Venn diagram

2.5.11.A-Develop a plan to analyze a problem, identify the information needed to solve the problem, carry out the plan, check whether an answer makes sense, and explain how the problem was solved in grade appropriate contexts.

2.5.11.B-Use symbols, mathematical terminology, standard notation, mathematical rules, graphing and other types of mathematical representations to communicate observations, predictions, concepts, procedures, generalizations, ideas, and results.

DeMorgan's Laws

complements

Conditional Probability recognize vocabulary that indicates that a problem is conditional . Use formulas to calculate the probability of an event given the occurrence of another event

if, from, given, when conditional probability

Independence, Mutual Disjointness Declare independence of two or more events intuitively by logical explanation
Declare independence of two or more events mathematically by showing the intersection equals the product Determine if two events cannot possibly occur simultaneously/have no intersection

intuitive independence

formulaic independence

mutually disjoint

|                      |   |   |
|----------------------|---|---|
| Binomial Probability | Determine if a situation satisfies the binomial criteria Construct a probability distribution table for every possible binomial occurrence of 'n' trials Use a weighted average to calculate the expectation of a single event | binomial criteria expectation |
|----------------------|---|---|

Producing Data

| Essential Questions                                     | Content                            | Knowledge and Skills   | Vocabulary                | Assessments | Lessons | Resources   | Standards |
|---|------------------------------------|--|---------------------------|-------------|---------|---|-----------|
| How can we collect and obtain data that can be          | A. Methods of Data Collection      | A1. Sample vs. Population  | individuals               |             |         | Textbook:Statistics: Concepts and Controversies, by David S. Moore                              |           |
| reliably used to draw conclusions about the population? |                                    | A2. Categorical vs. Quantitative   |                           |             |         |   |           |
|   |                                    | A3. Observational Study vs. Experiment   | variables                 |             |         | Ch1: Where do Data Come From?  |           |
|   |                                    |  | categorical               |             |         | Article:"Report Measures Smoking's Effect"Article:"Survey of Center City" |           |
|   | B. Planning and Conducting Surveys | B1. Recognizing sources of bias in surveys (Voluntary response and convenience sampling) | quantitative              |             |         |   |           |
|   |                                    | B2. Increasing Accuracy in Surveys   |                           |             |         |   |           |
|   |                                    | B3. Simple Random Samples (SRS)  |                           |             |         |   |           |
|   |                                    | B4. Stratified, Cluster, and Systematic Sampling   | voluntary response sample |             |         | Ch2: Samples: Good and Bad   |           |

|                         |   |   |  |
|-------------------------|---|---|--|
|                         |   | convenience sample                          | Table of Random Digits   |
|                         | C1. Parameter vs. Statistic   | simple random sample                        | Article: from Phoenix, "Around the Town segment", Can you match the face with the answer? |
|                         | C2. Variability vs. Precision   |   |  |
|                         | C3. Construction of Histograms  |   |  |
| C. Sampling Variability | C4. Constructing and Interpreting 95% Confidence Intervals.                               | systematic, stratified, and cluster samples | Ch 3: What do Samples Tell Us?   |
|                         |   | parameter                                   | Ch4: Sampling Errors   |
|                         |   | statistic                                   | Nielsen Ratings Book   |
|                         |   |   | Article: "Time May be Close for a Woman in the White House"                               |
|                         | D1. Recognizing under-coverage  | bias  |  |
|                         | D2. Non Sampling Errors: Processing, Response, and Non Response Errors                    | precision                                   |  |
|                         | D3. Reflecting on the appropriateness of a sample (Big 8 Questions to ask about a sample) |   |  |
|                         |   | confidence interval                         |  |
| D. Sampling Errors      |   | MOE (Margin of Error)                       |  |

undercoverage processing, response, and non response error

Experiments

| Essential Questions   | Content                                | Knowledge and Skills   | Vocabulary  | Assessments | Lessons | Resources   | Standards  |
|---|--|--|---|-------------|---------|---|--|
| How can randomized controlled experiments produce valid data? | A. Planning and Conducting Experiments | A1. Treatments, control groups, experimental units, random assignment, replication | observational studies and experiments                                     |             |         | Ch5: Experiments: Good and Bad                                      | 2.6.11.A-Design and conduct an experiment using random sampling. |
|   |  | A2. Hidden Bias, confounding, placebo effect, blinding                             |   |             |         |   |  |
|   |  | A3. Completely randomized design   | explanatory, response, and lurking variables                              |             |         | Ch6: Experiments in the Real World                                  |  |
|   |  | A4. Block and Matched Pairs designs  |   |             |         |   |  |
|   |  | A5. Generalizing results from observational studies and experiments                | randomization, replication and control                                    |             |         | Articles:   |  |
|   |  | A6. Random Digit Simulation  |   |             |         | “Botched Experiment Leads to Banning of Red Dye FD&amp;C #2” |  |
|   | B. Measurement                         | A7. Refusals, Non-adherers, and Dropouts   | refusals, non-adherers, and dropouts                                      |             |         | “AIDS drug Trials Enter New Age”                             |  |
|   |  | B1. Identifying the appropriate instrument   | RCE (randomized controlled experiments, block designs, and matched pairs) |             |         | Ch7: Ethics   |  |

|  |                             |  |
|--|-----------------------------|--|
| B2. Valid vs. Invalid  | statisticalsignificance |  |
| B3. Rates vs. Counts   |                             |  |
| B4. Construct validity vs. Content Validity                  |                             | Ch 8:Measurement                             |
| B5: Accuracy in Measurement: reliabilityand lack of bias | measurement                 |  |
|  |                             | HowardGardner'sMultipleIntelligences |
|  | validity                    |  |
|  | accuracy                    |  |
|  | content/construct           |  |

Organizing Data

| Essential Questions  | Content                                | Knowledge and Skills   | Vocabulary  | Assessments | Lessons | Resources   | Standards   |
|--|--|--|---|-------------|---------|---|---|
| How can we display data in an organized way to compare and draw conclusions about both categorical and quantitative distributions? | A. Graphical Displays of Distributions | A1. Selecting a Two way table, Bar graph, or Pie chart for categorical dataA2. Constructing a line graph to illustrate change over timeA3. Selecting a histogram or Stem plot for quantitative dataA4: Constructing back to back and split stem plotsA5: Interpreting graphs via center shape and spread | bar graph, pie charthistogram, stem plotskyscraper, pancake |             |         | Ch 10: Graphs: Good and BadMisleading graphsCh 11: Displaying Distributions with Graphs | 2.6.11.C-Select or calculate the appropriate measure of central tendency, calculate and apply the interquartile range for one-variable data, and construct a line of best fit and calculate its equation for two-variable data. |

|   |  |   |
|---|--|---|
|   |  | Ch12:DescribingDistributionswith Numbers    |
|   | B1. Using Mean, median or mode todetermine the center of a distributionB2. Calculating standard deviation as ameasure of spreadB3. Finding the five number summary as ameasure of spread |   |
|   | B4. Constructing a box and whisker plot todisplay a five number summaryB5. Determining which measure of spreadis most appropriate  | Ch 13: DensityCurves andNormalDistributions |
| B. NumericalSummaries ofDistributions |  | Z tables  |

|   |   |
|---|---|
|   | mean, median,mode                           |
| C1. Understanding the transformation ofhistograms into density curves |   |
| C2. Characteristics of Density Curves                                     | resistance, nonresistance                   |
| C3. Measuring center (mean, median andmode) on a density curve        |   |
| C4.Characteristics of Normal Curves                                       | standard deviation,variance                 |
| C5. Sketching Normal Curves   |   |
| C6: Using the Empirical Rule: 68/95/99.7rule                          | five numbersummary, box andwhisker plot |
| C7. Converting data into the Standardized ZScore                      |   |

How can we use the properties of a Normal Distribution

to make conclusions about populations in nature?

C. Density Curves and Normal Distributions

density curves

Normal Distribution

Empirical Rule

X, Z, probability

BiVariate Data

| Essential Questions   | Content                         | Knowledge and Skills                                 | Vocabulary   | Assessments | Lessons | Resources  | Standards   |
|---|---------------------------------|--|--------------|-------------|---------|--|---|
| How can we use a scatter plot and correlation to            | A. Scatterplots and Correlation | A1. Determining explanatory and response variables   | scatter plot |             |         | Ch 14: Describing Relationships; Scatterplots and Correlation  | 2.6.11.C-Select or calculate the appropriate measure of central tendency, calculate and apply the interquartile range for one-variable data, and construct a line of best fit and calculate its equation for two-variable data. |
| assess the relationship between two quantitative variables? |                                 | A2. Assessing positive, negative, and no association |              |             |         |  |   |
|   |                                 | A3. Describing direction, form and strength          | association  |             |         | Scatter Plots from Bush/ Buchanan 2000 Primary Election show the effects of the dimpled chads in Palm Beach County |   |
|   | B. Regression                   | A4. Calculating correlation as a measure of strength | correlation  |             |         |  |   |

Ch15: Regression, Prediction, and Causation

B1. Fitting a Least Squares Regression Line to a set of data

B2. Interpreting  $r^2$ , the coefficient of determination

B3. Realizing the impact of extrapolation

B4. Determine if an association is attributable to causation, common response, or confounding

least squares regression line coefficient of determination

causation, common response, confounding

Culminating Project

| Essential Questions | Content | Knowledge and Skills  | Vocabulary | Assessments | Lessons | Resources | Standards |
|---------------------|---------|---|------------|-------------|---------|-----------|-----------|
|                     |         | Students will choose an explanatory and response variable that they want to investigate (with approval of the teacher) and collect, display, analyze and interpret their findings in a presentation to the class. |            |             |         |           |           |